On the Mindset quiz, I got a 100% growth mindset. Although I have done research about mindsets before, reading about it again was really interesting to me. As I was reading the part about how babies overcome the hardest challenges of life of walking, talking and crawling it made me rethink my future. Me studying media arts is sort of the “easy” route for me where I already am well versed in media arts so it’s not as challenging as studying something new. I then went and discussed this with my Anthropology professor and she had unknowingly convinced me to change my major. I want to challenge myself so I will be studying Anthropology and minoring in media arts. I am super excited for the future and how I can continue to have a growth mindset and challenge myself.
