

Laura E Grooms

When I was growing up, I really enjoyed being with my older brothers. My family spent a few years in Florida and then in Japan. The time in Japan was a really important time for family since we didn't speak the language or know anybody. Me being the youngest usually meant I wanted to hang out with my big brothers, but they of course wanted to play video games together. I really enjoyed our time in Japan, it showed me from a young age that we need our family.

My brothers have always been there for me and being the youngest, they have unintentionally taught me lessons from their own doing. I learned all of the unsaid rules through my brothers. I am eternally grateful for them and all they have taught and continue to teach me.
